

BPL technology is immature at this time and has been proven to cause harmful interference to other users of the spectrum. It is the FCC's first responsibility to guard the spectrum from misuse, not expedite technology to the market.